

Application of the document to the planning, design and construction process

The following flow chart outlines the typical phases of site planning, design and construction and how aspects of this document can be used to appropriately integrate erosion and sediment control into each phase of the building or construction process.

